

CST REVIEW

Vocabulary

34 basic literary terms +

- Literal (scientifically accurate, straightforward)
- Figurative (poetic, metaphorical, not literal)
- Objective (based on scientifically proven facts)
- Subjective (based on personal opinion or judgment)
- Bias (a slant toward one side or another)
- Denotation (straightforward, literal definition)
- Connotation (associated, more figurative definition)
- Appeal to emotion (pathos)
- Appeal to logic (logos)
- Appeal to author's credibility (ethos)
- Greek roots and prefixes: hydro (water), hyper (over), hypo (under), anthrop (having human qualities), homo (same), hetero (other, different), poly (many), mono (one), philo (love of), pedo (having to do with children and/or soil), chron (time), anti (against), dem (people), morph (form), path (suffering), micro (small), macro (large), pan (all), thermo (heat), geo (related to earth, rocks, dirt), bio (related to life and living organisms), neo (recent, new), phon (sound)

Mechanics

- Verb Voice: Active = "I eat;" Passive = "The apples are eaten"
- Verb Tense: present, past, future; present perfect, past perfect, future perfect; present progressive, past progressive, future progressive; etc.
- Past participles: been, gone, done, eaten, chosen, drunk, sung, etc.
- Present participles: being, going, doing, eating, choosing, drinking, singing, etc.
- Gerunds: - ing words as nouns as "My dad's cooking stinks"
- Infinitives: basic form of a verb, as in to eat, to sing, to walk, to swim...
- Possessives: my, mine, your, yours, his, her, hers, their, theirs, its, etc...
- Singular possessives that end in s: Odysseus' (two of more syllables require only an apostrophe)
- Plural possessives: children's, women's, everyone's, the Jones' house
- Contractions: it is = it's, you are = you're, we are = we're, they are = they're
- Titles of lengthy texts (novels, plays, operas, TV series, etc.) go in italics (underlined if in handwriting) and titles of shorter texts (songs, poems, individual TV episodes, etc.) go within "quotation marks"
- Hyphens are used to divide words that cover two lines of text or to join words to create compound adjectives as in "He wasn't your run-of-the-mill boyfriend..."
- Semicolons are used to divide elements of a series when one or more of those elements contains a comma OR to join two independent clauses, as in "I hired her; she was my sister" OR to join clauses using a conjunctive adverb as in "I wanted to hire her; however, she was my sister."
- Ellipses (...) are used to omit a short section of text when quoting or excerpting. For example: "Martin Luther King said, "I have a dream...I have a dream...I have a dream..."

For more helpful help, visit CST Preparation - Standards Review at webstacourse.com