RESULTS

- My results are lame. A blind baby worm on sedatives could have done better.
- My results are OK and are simply the direct result of my making easy choices and spending only a modicum of time.
- My results are pretty cool. I am surprised, considering how little effort I put forth.
- My results are very good, and I am quite proud of myself. I want to share my results in the first class newsletter.
- My results are brilliant. I must have been channeling some greater force because the outcome is astonishing.

LEARNING

- This was a total waste of my time and energy. I learned absolutely nothing about either Hamlet or my own creative process through the completing of this assignment.
- This was an OK activity. I understood both the soliloquy and my own creative process a tiny tad better through the completing of this assignment.
- This was a pretty fun activity. I understood both the soliloquy and my own creative process a bit better through the completing of this assignment.
- This was an interesting activity. I understood both the soliloquy and my own creative process quite a bit better through the completing of this assignment.
- This activity was incredible. The teacher must have been channeling some higher force when she think it up. Wow, daily, I am astonished by the creativity of the teacher and by the amount that I am learning, not just about literature, but about life.
